

CAME TO TAKING SMUFF

Threw Out Away on Hampstead Health, but Was Searching for It Next Morning.

Hamstead Health may yet contain a precious relic of Charles Lamb. "One summer's evening," writes Hume, "I was walking on Hampstead Heath with Charles Lamb, and we had talked ourselves into a philosophic contempt of our slavery to the habit of snuff taking, and with the firm resolution of never again taking a single pinch we drew our snuffboxes away from the pill on which we stood, and among the ferns and brambles below, and went home in triumph. I began to be very miserable, was wretched all night, in the morning I was walking on the same hill. I saw Charles Lamb below, searching among the bushes, he looked up laughing and saying, 'What you are come to look for your snuff box too!'"

"Oh, no," said I, taking a pinch out of a paper in my waistcoat pocket. I went for a halfpenny worth to the first shop that was open. —London Chronicle.

HARMONY NEEDS NO MUSIC

It does not disturb the nerve. Are you Sure Result if it is Lacking There.

The imperative need of harmony in home surroundings as well as in business life is being fast by thinking more every day. It is impossible to do our best work in any atmosphere of confusion, and it is an almost invariable rule that illness and disturbance of nerves are the penalty exacted if we allow ourselves to be drawn into conditions that do not spell harmony. Our home is our castle, and nothing should be allowed to enter therein that makes us unhappy.

If one is obliged to take strangers into the home on account of financial consideration it is wise to make sure that they are not antagonistic in any way that will affect the family relations, otherwise it is better to give up the extra profit and do with less if it means peace of mind. There is no price too great to pay for harmony for it means health, happiness, financial success to you and yours, the ability to help others, and all through the giving and holding the mental peace which is the peace of understanding. Some of us have to be beat on with many stripes before we realize the need of and grasp the true value of harmony, but those who have already felt a longing for it will value it highly and get the maximum of it.

WHAT RUSSIANS WOULD LIKE

Military Feature of Control of Dardanelles Doesn't Completely Cover Her Dreams by Good Deal.

Under the caption, "Russia's Dreams," Harper's Weekly says: "To the Slavic mind the fall of Constantinople will be the greatest military event in centuries."

Certainly, but the military feature of control of the Dardanelles doesn't completely cover Russia's dream by a good deal.

Dream of a country whose population has increased 20 per cent in 40 years, whose resources in human necessities, such as fuel, food and building material, are hardly approached by any other country on earth—dream of such a country getting a fair chance to compete for the world's trade, and you are getting somewhere near the size of the Russian dream. Hundreds of thousands of acres of finest timber in one forest alone; unlimited oil spouting from mere pricking of the earth's crust; vast deposits of all sorts of minerals that have hardly been scratched; already leading the world in production of cereals; labor at oriental prices; an army of 10,000,000 fighters who fight merely because ordered to do so.

Do you dream of great Russian commercial fleets sailing the Mediterranean in continuous procession? Maybe the English, so-called "the nation of traders," are dreaming such things. Maybe the next mighty struggle will be between the two great allies whose gunboats now have designs on the opposite ends of the Dardanelles pass age. Stranger things have happened, and after all, trade largely makes up the soul and conscience of nations.—Louisville Herald.

CLOGGED UP BY SEDIMENT

Flow of Water in City Mains Restricted by Sedimentation and Incrustation Taking Place Within.

It has only recently been observed that the efficiency of the flow of water in a city's main is very much restricted by the sedimentation which takes place in them. Because of the slowness with which these deposits occur, it is not readily noticeable, but the difference is quickly discernible by making note of the character of the stream issuing therefrom before and after cleaning. In the case of an eight-inch main in Camden, N. J., the capacity was found to have been cut down to less than one-quarter. Another illustration may be derived from the experience of Belle Plaine, La. Here a cast iron water pipe nearly a mile long and six inches in diameter had a capacity when clean of 335 gallons a minute, with a pressure of 60 pounds. This pipe became so clogged that a pressure of 125 pounds was necessary in order to deliver 248 gallons a minute. There are several mechanical means of accomplishing this task. One consists of a nine-foot device which is placed in the pipe and sent along by pressure behind it, and as it moves the deposit is cut by the many revolving knives of which it is made. A flow of water is maintained and the released material is washed away as it is detached.
